

We want to improve the health of older people and we want to hear from you

We are inviting older people and the care givers of older people to discuss our new Health of Older People strategy.

We at the Ministry of Health are rethinking our approach to the health of older people. Last year we asked the New Zealand public: What are we doing well in older people's health? What could we be doing better? You shared with us invaluable information that is now informing our new Health of Older People strategy.

Now we'd like to share with you:

- The information we gathered from last year,
- the conclusions we reached, and
- our provisional goals and vision.

We'd like to invite you to help design our new approach to the health of older people.

Come by for a cup of tea at:
